Speaker 1: So, what about a present?

We need to take a present to Mark and Joanna's dinner party on Friday.

Speaker 2: Oh, yes.

What do you think?

What shall we take?

Speaker 1: Well, what about a box of chocolates?

Speaker 2: A box of chocolates?

No, Joanna doesn't like chocolates.

Speaker 1: Oh, really?

Well, have you got any ideas?

Speaker 2: Well, we could take some flowers.

Speaker 1: Yes, that's a good idea.

Yes, everybody likes flowers.

OK, a nice bunch of flowers.

Speaker 2: Great.

Speaker 1: Oh, I nearly forgot.

It's Tom's birthday on Monday.

What should we get him?

Speaker 2: Tom's birthday?

Oh yes.

Well, what about a T-shirt for him? Or something like that?

Speaker 1: No, it's difficult to buy clothes for people.

I mean, what's his size? And what colours does he like?

Speaker 2: It isn't very difficult.

We can get him a medium size I'm sure that is ok. He likes blue. A medium-sized t-shirt with green colour.

Speaker 1: I don't know. How about buying him a scarf. The size is not important. It is easy.

Speaker 2: A scarf I think it is a boring present.

A: I'm going to see Maria tomorrow. She's ill and in bed, and I think she's bored.

B: Are you going to give her a present?

A: Well, I'm going to give her a book. It's a really good book. I read it last month, and she's got lots of time.

B: Reading is boring. I think buying her a box of chocolates is better. When she sees us, she'll be happy.

A: OK. Let's visit her tomorrow at 8:00 p.m.

A: James and Fiona are going to get married next month.

B: Oh, really?

A: The three of us at work—David, Simona, and I—are going to get them a wedding present.

B: What are you going to get?

A: Well, it was difficult to decide. David suggested buying some jewelry, like a necklace or a bracelet, but that would be only for Fiona. I suggested giving them a voucher so they can buy what they really want.

B: I think that's a perfect choice.

A: Did you hear? Our colleague, Sarah is leaving work at the end of the month.

B: Oh, really? That's sad. Are we going to get her a present?

A: Yes, the team wants to buy something for her before she leaves.

B: What are we thinking of getting?

A: At first, I thought about buying her a bag or a camera, but that might be too personal.

B: True. What about chocolates or flowers?

A: Chocolates are nice, but she doesn't eat much sugar, and flowers don't last very long.

B: That's right. So what shall we get her?

A: How about a nice cup? She always drinks coffee at work.

B: That's a great idea. She can use it every day and remember us.

A: Exactly. Let's get her a cup and a card from everyone.

B: Perfect. I'm sure she'll love it.
